World traveled, Davis writes what she lives. Face to face with a tiger in the jungles of Malaysia, leeches, snakes, swamps and rainforests are not fiction with this writer. A true-life adventure seeker, Marti Davis, flanked by one guard, spent a day among murderers, rapists and other hardened criminals in a maximum security prison for men. Her research required her to sign a waiver stating that she understood that if she were taken hostage by an inmate, she may not be rescued, even to save her life. Her story shows good insight into prison life and pumps up fiction writing with new excitement. A Better Man is the first of her six novels to be published by Peacock Publishing.
