Four-Year-Old Drummer Scores Gig At Whisky A Go-Go

BLOOMFIELD HILLS, Mich. (Wireless Flash - FlashNews) – One teeny, tiny drummer boy is making huge rock 'n' roll history.

On October 27, four-year-old drumming prodigy Julian Pavone will play with his band of grade-schoolers at the World Famous Whisky A Go-Go in Los Angeles, becoming the youngest musician ever to rock the venue.

Little Julian will drum where legends like Led Zeppelin, The Doors, and The Who once jammed, and dad Bernadino Pavone says the kiddie kit master has his rockstar moves all planned out.

Bernadino explains, "Julian told me he wants to jump off the stage during the show. I told him, 'I don't think so!'"

Dad expects Julian to work the crowd like a pro and says he's great at dealing with adoring groupies.

He insists Julian isn't a spoiled, demanding rockstar and says the tot has never screamed for a juice box backstage.

In fact, every time Julian wants to snack on green room goodies, he runs it by Mom and Dad first.

Bernadino believes his kid is a "compassionate rocker," possibly a mini Bono in training, because he's always so kind to everyone.
